Description: A program designed for athletic trainers, physicians, EMS and healthcare providers to better improve knowledge and skills related to emergent concussion and abdominal trauma situations and protective splinting following fracture or injury. This is an interactive program that will feature evidence based information and provide hands on opportunities to implement in breakout groups. Concussion will share best practices for determining concussion with systematic sideline evaluations. Abdominal trauma will examine various conditions and specific nuances to properly examine and make objective care decisions. Splinting will examine various splinting materials and their use for initial immobilization and protection for the upper and lower extremities with return to play considerations.

Program is sponsored by the Jacksonville Jaguar Foundation PREP program and the Jacksonville Sports Medicine Program. Jacksonville Orthopedic Institute, DJO Ortho, FASMED, and Baptist Health, Henry Schein & Orfit
