About Jacksonville Sports Medicine Program:

The Jacksonville Sports Medicine Program (JSMP) in Jacksonville, Florida, is a volunteer based non-profit organization that advocates for youth sports injury prevention. The program is a community healthcare collaborative that works with coaches, doctors, other healthcare professionals, parents and other community members interested in making sports safer. The program provides schools with education, prevention tactics and advocates for the inclusion of certified athletic trainers within youth sporting organizations, programs and events. This program has been actively serving the northeast Florida region for more than 37 years. The JSMP is home to the Project17 Certified Athletic Trainer initiative. The Jacksonville Sports Medicine Program is supported by: Wolfson Children's Hospital, Nemours Children's Health, the Duval County Medical Society, Brooks Rehabilitation and the Duval County Public Schools. The JSMP is dedicated to youth sports safety through awareness, advocacy and injury prevention. For additional information, please visit jaxsmp.com.
